FUND MANAGER COMMENTARY

Performance was positive in Q3, driven by positive outcomes from asset allocation, credit selection and rates strategies.

We slightly reduced credit exposure early in the quarter as credit spreads were looking less attractive after the Q2 rally. We nonetheless maintained a marginally overweight position which was beneficial to the portfolio as credit markets posted positive excess returns in Q3.

In September, we increased our underweight to US dollar credit as we became concerned about the noise around the US presidential election and the US fiscal package negotiations. This benefited the portfolio as US dollar credit underperformed pan-European equivalents in the last weeks of September. Our risk management strategies were focussed around slightly increasing hedging positions using European CDS indices. This detracted from performance as CDS indices tightened in the quarter.

Credit alpha was positive, driven by successful sector rotation in the quarter. In particular, we were active in European financial exposure, playing consolidation themes in Italy and Spain. Exposure to cyclicals, corporate hybrids, emerging market debt and high yield names also contributed to performance as those parts of the credit market continued to compress as investors sought higher yielding assets.

Our active rates strategies also contributed to performance. Our exposure to long-dated Australia performed well as long-dated Australian rates began to re-converge with long-dated rates in the rest of the developed world. Tactical duration additions into a period of high macro-risk at the beginning of the quarter performed well.

KEY RISKS

- The value of an investment and any income taken from it is not guaranteed and can go down as well as up; you may not get back the amount you originally invested.
- The return from your investment is not guaranteed and therefore you may receive a lower or higher return than you anticipated. There will be a variation in performance between funds with similar objectives due to the different assets selected.
- PMC's charges and associated transaction costs are subject to change, with notice for the former and without notice for the latter. Charges and transactions costs deducted from the policy reduce your potential for capital growth in the future.
- Tax rules and the treatment of income and capital gains could change in the future and may be applied retrospectively.
- Inflation reduces the purchasing power of money over time as the cost of purchasing goods and services increases. If the rate of inflation exceeds the rate of return on your portfolio, it will erode the value of your portfolio and its investments in real terms.
- In extreme market conditions it may be difficult to realise assets held for a fund and it may not be possible to redeem units at short notice. We may have to delay acting on your instructions to sell or the price at which you cancel the units may be lower than you anticipated.
- The value of a fund's assets may be affected by uncertainties such as international political developments, market sentiment, economic conditions, changes in government policies, restrictions on foreign investment and currency repatriation, currency fluctuations and other developments in the laws and regulations of countries in which investment may be made.
- PMC seeks to mitigate counterparty risk wherever possible on behalf of its policyholders through a variety of measures which include: each fund's non-cash assets being held with independent custodians, sweeping cash (where appropriate) overnight into the LGIM's range of Liquidity funds (above a deminimus level), using the delivery versus payment system when settling transactions and the use of central clearing for exchange traded derivatives and forward foreign exchange transactions. However, in the event of the failure of a counterparty, custodian or issuer there is a residual risk that a fund may suffer asset losses which are unrecoverable.
