FUND MANAGER COMMENTARY

European equity markets performed well through April as they recovered from March lows. Investors appeared willing to look through the sharp downturn in economic data, as risk sentiment improved with increasing evidence that the curve of the infection rates for the coronavirus virus are progressively peaking. This is encouraging news though there remains a high degree of uncertainty as lockdowns begin to be relaxed globally. Broadly, there was a continuation of good returns for defensives, momentum and quality growth styles. However, with hopes of an end to the crisis, we saw improvement in cyclicals, value and financials towards the end of the month.

Much of the focus during corporate reporting continues to be on balance sheets, financial outlook and dividends. EPS recession, liquidity requirements and regulatory pressures mean that 2020 will likely see an unprecedented decline in European dividends. Meanwhile, accommodative central bank policies and some form of lockdown easing is being viewed as a positive for a rebound in economic momentum in H2.

The L&G European Equity Income fund outperformed as value stocks strengthened in the later part of the month. Sector selection was a small negative, while stock selection a big positive. Capital goods saw bounces in some underperformers, pharma was good and our materials exposure did well. Banks, telecoms and food retail were the larger negatives. At the stock level, Valeo, SES, Bayer and Rexel outperformed. ENI, Carrefour and Societe Generale were the main laggards. On activity, we exited the small position of Spanish listed Caixabank.

KEY RISKS

- The value of an investment and any income taken from it is not guaranteed and can go down as well as up; you may not get back the amount you originally invested.
- The return from this fund is dependent on relatively few individual investments. This means that a fall in the value of an individual investment can have a major impact on the overall performance of the fund.
- The fund could lose money if any institution providing services such as acting as counterparty to derivatives or other instruments, becomes unwilling or unable to meet its obligations to the fund.
- Derivatives are highly sensitive to changes in the value of the asset on which they are based and can increase the size of losses and gains.
- The fund may have underlying investments that are valued in currencies that are different from sterling (British pounds). Exchange rate fluctuations will impact the value of your investment. Currency hedging techniques may be applied to reduce this impact but may not entirely eliminate it.
- We may take some or all of the ongoing charges from the fund's capital rather than the fund's income. This increases the amount of income, but it reduces the growth potential and may lead to a fall in the value of the fund.
