FUND MANAGER COMMENTARY

October was a very tough month for Asian equity markets, as fears regarding the longevity of the bull market have been exacerbated by higher macro volatility. Concerns about trade wars, a sharp slowdown in China, European political woes, rising inflation and rates fuelled risk aversion. Monthly economic data was mixed across regions. As equity markets have fallen sharply, the reaction to earnings disappointment has seen stocks being punished more than usual. Not even valuations have provided much of a cushion.

As the market rout intensified through the period, defensive equities and value stocks broadly outperformed high growth cyclical counterparts. At the country level, Korea, China and Hong Kong were the worst performing regions. The Australian market fell in line with global markets, but saw relative outperformance of regional Asia indices.

For L&G Asian Income, the fund delivered a net return of -5.5% in the period, which meant considerable relative outperformance of its benchmark. Strong stock selection in China, Australia and India were leading drivers, while sector positioning in Korea and Hong Kong, where we are underweight, was also beneficial. At the industry level, our sector bets in industrials, telecoms, materials and tech added most value. Key individual outperformers included Bharti Infratel, Transurban Group, Coal India, China Mobile and China Shenhua. While not owning the China internet names also made a strong relative contribution. Detractors included Coway and Downer. There was no new activity in the period.

PAUL HILLSLEY

Paul joined LGIM in 2006 and is the lead fund manager for the Asian income portfolios. He began his investment career in 1991 at Phillips and Drew Fund Management and developed broad experience across UK, Europe, Japan and, predominantly, Asia ex Japan, over subsequent years. At LGIM Paul launched the Legal & General Asian Income Trust in 2013 and formed the Global Income Team which forms the core of the firm's equity income expertise. He read engineering, economics and management at Oxford University.

KEY RISKS

- The fund could lose money if any institution providing services such as acting as counterparty to derivatives or other instruments, becomes unwilling or unable to meet its obligations to the fund.
- Derivatives are highly sensitive to changes in the value of the asset on which they are based and can increase the size of losses and gains.
- The fund may have underlying investments that are valued in currencies that are different from sterling (British pounds). Any such investments will be impacted by exchange rate fluctuations and this may affect the value of your investment and any income from it. Currency hedging techniques may be applied to reduce the impact of exchange rate fluctuations but may not entirely eliminate it.
- We may take some or all of the ongoing charges from the fund’s capital rather than the fund’s income. This increases the amount of income, but it reduces the growth potential and may lead to a fall in the value of the fund.
