FUND MANAGER COMMENTARY

Equity markets performed better in November, though investors remain relatively risk averse. Corporate newsflow began to recede following Q3 earnings, meaning that market direction was once more in the hands of top-down drivers. Global growth indicators continue to imply an economic slowdown, while the response to comments from a less hawkish Fed and the Bank of England's post-Brexit scenarios were met with a degree of caution. UK equity markets continue to be out of favour, falling -1.6% in total returns. Mid-caps underperformed, while low beta names found support. In terms of sectors, we saw telecoms and healthcare top the winners list. On the flipside, resources and capital goods industries fared poorly.

Turning to performance, the L&G Special Situations fund fell 4.1% in the period, which we consider deeply disappointing. Stock selection was a considerable detriment, driven by our exposure to mid and small caps, alongside returns in consumer services, resources and technology sectors. Sector allocation was broadly neutral. In respect of individual performers, GVC Holdings, IQE, Ophir Energy and Energean Oil & Gas were the biggest detractors. For GVC, analysts lowered estimates to account for recent UK regulatory decisions, which impact 2019 earnings. The company also announced the acquisition of Australian digital sportsbetting group, highlighting the strength of its strategy. Energy names were weak due to the correlation with oil prices, which continues to experience substantial price declines on supply/demand fears. Stand-out positives were leisure names Wizz Air and Carnival.

On activity, there was no significant trading in the period.

KEY RISKS

- The return from this fund is dependent on relatively few individual investments. This means that a fall in the value of an individual investment can have a major impact on the overall performance of the fund.
- The fund could lose money if any institution providing services such as acting as counterparty to derivatives or other instruments, becomes unwilling or unable to meet its obligations to the fund.
- Derivatives are highly sensitive to changes in the value of the asset on which they are based and can increase the size of losses and gains.
- The fund may have underlying investments that are valued in currencies that are different from sterling (British pounds). Any such investments will be impacted by exchange rate fluctuations and this may affect the value of your investment and any income from it. Currency hedging techniques may be applied to reduce the impact of exchange rate fluctuations but may not entirely eliminate it.
