FUND MANAGER COMMENTARY

March was dominated by dovish monetary policy and yield curve flattening. US credit markets struggled to keep up with the large government bond rally, leading to some modest spread widening. This also weighed on emerging market debt. European credit generally ended the month tighter, boosted by the hope of continued supportive central bank policy.

In terms of performance, the dynamic asset allocation contributed given the continued strength in credit markets. Credit selection contributed positively to performance over the month, with exposure to financials via Unicredit and HSBC being the main positives. Our regional credit specialists also added to performance through security selection, primarily in energy, commercial paper and banking. However, exposure to General Electric underperformed, with increased scrutiny on the company's free cashflow position. We have since reduced our exposure to the name. Exposure to Argentina also underperformed. Global rates positions contributed positively over the quarter, driven by our bias to be long euro rates (primarily through curve flatteners) versus US rates (primarily through long breakeven inflation exposure). However, protective equity hedges detracted from performance.

We remain cautious over the longer term given central banks' inability to normalise their policy in a world of excess debt and disappointing productivity. In the shorter term, the focus is on valuations getting back towards their expensive 2018 levels. We are therefore looking to reduce risk into the rally even if conditions suggest it could continue for now.

KEY RISKS

- The value of an investment and any income taken from it is not guaranteed and can go down as well as up. You may not get back the amount you originally invested.
- This fund holds bonds that are traded through agents, brokers or investment banks matching buyers and sellers. This makes the bonds less easy to buy and sell than investments traded on an exchange. In exceptional circumstances the fund may not be able to sell bonds and may defer withdrawals, or suspend dealing. The Directors can only delay paying out if it is in the interests of all investors and with the permission of the fund depository.
- The fund invests directly or indirectly in bonds which are issued by companies or governments. If these companies or governments experience financial difficulty, they may be unable to pay back some or all of the interest, original investment or other payments that they owe. If this happens, the value of the fund may fall.
- The fund could lose money if any institution providing services such as acting as counterparty to derivatives or other instruments, becomes unwilling or unable to meet its obligations to the fund.
- Derivatives are highly sensitive to changes in the value of the asset on which they are based and can increase the size of losses and gains. The impact to the fund can be greater where derivatives are used in an extensive or complex way.
- The fund may have underlying investments that are valued in currencies that are different from the currency of this share class. Exchange rate fluctuations will impact the value of your investment. Currency hedging techniques may be applied to reduce this impact but may not entirely eliminate it.
- We may take some or all of the ongoing charges from the fund's capital rather than the fund's income. This increases the amount of income, but it reduces the growth potential and may lead to a fall in the value of the fund.
- Investment returns on bonds are sensitive to trends in interest rate movements. Such changes will affect the value of your investment.
