FUND MANAGER COMMENTARY

Global equity markets managed to overcome the well-known seasonal trading adage 'sell in May and go away', with strong returns seen across most regions last month. The UK equity market proved to be remarkably resilient to what are additionally now familiar domestic economic headwinds.

European equities were impacted by market nervousness around rising political worries in Italy and Spain, alongside a slowing of momentum in the core economies. Meanwhile, the US dollar remains well supported, while the surge in the oil price looks to be over for now. From a style perspective, growth stocks outperformed during May.

The FTSE 100 has impressively delivered a 1000 point rally from March lows, which has seen the market PE (Price/Earnings) multiple rebound. Sterling weakness has been beneficial for large cap overseas earners, while an improvement in the capex environment continues to be a supportive factor. Value stocks were the weakest performing style factor, while high-beta and EPS momentum performed well. Overall, we believe sentiment appears to be warming towards the UK market, which looks more solid on technical and valuation grounds.

The fund delivered very strong returns in May, reporting 530bps relative outperformance. This was largely driven by stock selection in consumer services, where we saw a big contribution from Ocado, as well as industrials and technology sectors. Seven holdings hit 52-week share price highs, spread across multiple industries. Finally, sector positioning was also positive led by our underweight in financials and telecoms.

KEY RISKS

- The return from this fund is dependent on relatively few individual investments. This means that a fall in the value of an individual investment can have a major impact on the overall performance of the fund.
- The fund could lose money if any institution providing services such as acting as counterparty to derivatives or other instruments, becomes unwilling or unable to meet its obligations to the fund.
- Derivatives are highly sensitive to changes in the value of the asset on which they are based and can increase the size of losses and gains.
- The fund may have underlying investments that are valued in currencies that are different from sterling (British pounds). Any such investments will be impacted by exchange rate fluctuations and this may affect the value of your investment and any income from it. Currency hedging techniques may be applied to reduce the impact of exchange rate fluctuations but may not entirely eliminate it.
