Performance assumes all fund charges have been taken and that all income generated by the investments, after deduction of tax, remains in the fund. This fund has adopted a single swinging price, this means that on any given day the single dealing price will be set at either bid, offer or somewhere in between, based on whether there was a net inflow or outflow into or out of the Fund. The past performance depicted in this factsheet is based on that dealing price and therefore may appear more volatile than it would otherwise be if we were to show the notional bid or offer performance, this is as a result of the daily swing.

FUND MANAGER COMMENTARY

September was a better month for risky asset classes, after a weak August. Emerging market tensions abated somewhat, while Italy also recovered well. In the context of stronger equity and credit markets, government bond yields unsurprisingly moved higher, boosted by decent economic data, particularly in the US. The Fed hiked rates at the end of September, in line with expectations. However, the US dollar was weaker over the month as August's flight-to-quality trade faded.

The fund's negative absolute return over the month was due to the rise in underlying interest rates, as the tightening in credit spreads was insufficient to offset this negative impact. The fund performed in line with the index as a positive return from our short duration position was offset by the underweight in long maturity non-financials, which outperformed due to demand from insurance companies and pension funds that were attracted by the higher yields. Given our cautious credit outlook we continue to prefer to run a balanced portfolio in terms of risk and are seeking to generate additional returns through credit selection and selective participation in new issues.

Looking ahead, the move higher in interest rates, combined with evidence of increasing inflation pressure, has the potential to undermine risky asset classes as investors factor in the accelerating removal of central bank support. That said, global growth should remain strong for now, and the upcoming earnings season is likely to show healthy growth.

KEY RISKS

- This fund holds bonds that, rather than being traded on an exchange, are traded through agents, brokers or investment banks matching buyers and sellers. This makes the bonds less easy to buy and sell than investments that are traded on an exchange and on any particular day there may not be a buyer or a seller for the bonds. In times of market uncertainty or if an exceptional amount of withdrawals are requested it may become less easy for your fund to sell investments and the Manager may defer withdrawals, or suspend dealing. The Manager can only delay paying out if it is in the interests of all investors and with the permission of the fund trustee or depositary.
- The fund invests directly or indirectly in bonds which are issued by companies or governments. If these companies or governments experience financial difficulty, they may be unable to pay back some or all of the interest, original investment or other payments that they owe. If this happens, the value of your fund may fall.
- The fund could lose money if any institution providing services such as acting as counterparty to derivatives or other instruments, becomes unwilling or unable to meet its obligations to the fund.
- Derivatives are highly sensitive to changes in the value of the asset on which they are based and can increase the size of losses and gains.
- The fund may have underlying investments that are valued in currencies that are different from the currency of this share class. Any such investments will be impacted by exchange rate fluctuations and this may affect the value of your investment and any income from it. Currency hedging techniques may be applied to reduce the impact of exchange rate fluctuations but may not entirely eliminate it.
- We may take some or all of the ongoing charges from the fund's capital rather than the fund's income. This increases the amount of income, but it reduces the growth potential and may lead to a fall in the value of the fund.
- Investment returns on bonds are sensitive to trends in interest rate movements. Their values are likely to fall when interest rates rise. Such falls may be more pronounced in a low interest rate environment. Bonds with a short time to go before their maturity date will fall by less than bonds with a longer time to their maturity date.
