FUND MANAGER COMMENTARY

Another month passes with little concrete development around US-China trade developments, though there is growing optimism for a deal. In UK politics, Brexit-related risk has now moved onto worries over the outcome of a December general election. Meanwhile, the Q3 reporting season has been better than expected for most sectors. Globally, share price reaction has generally been skewed to the upside, though there have been some industry specific pockets of weakness as the market has now moved on to outlook commentary for 2020.

Momentum across European manufacturing remains soft following subdued September data. Yet, there are more encouraging signs that global industrial data is bottoming. Further, if we consider a healthier yield curve and supportive central bank policy then there is evidence to suggest headwinds to market upside have been reduced. Any improvement in European policy uncertainty would also help key confidence and sentiment measures begin to flatten out.

For the portfolio, favourable style tilt and good selection helped drive outperformance of its benchmark. Broadly, we saw a general move towards Value stocks. Cyclical outperformed Defensives, though the underlying sector picture was more mixed. Staples were generally weak on the back of a lacklustre earnings season. Energy and Utilities were also out of favour. Selection in Technology, Healthcare and Autos made the biggest positive contribution in the period. Not owning some of the blue-chip Consumer names was also helpful. At the stock level, PGS, Pandora, Getinge, Daimler and Wacker Chemie led returns.

KEY RISKS

- The value of your investment and any income you take from it may fall as well as rise and is not guaranteed. You might get back less than you invest.
- The return from this fund is dependent on relatively few individual investments. This means that a fall in the value of an individual investment can have a major impact on the overall performance of the fund.
- The fund could lose money if any institution providing services such as acting as counterparty to derivatives or other instruments, becomes unwilling or unable to meet its obligations to the fund.
- Derivatives are highly sensitive to changes in the value of the asset on which they are based and can increase the size of losses and gains.
- The fund may have underlying investments that are valued in currencies that are different from sterling (British pounds). Exchange rate fluctuations will impact the value of your investment. Currency hedging techniques may be applied to reduce this impact but may not entirely eliminate it.
- We may take some or all of the ongoing charges from the fund's capital rather than the fund's income. This increases the amount of income, but it reduces the growth potential and may lead to a fall in the value of the fund.
