FUND MANAGER COMMENTARY

The global high yield market continued to move higher in March. The month was dominated by dovish monetary policy and yield curve flattening. The US Federal Reserve (Fed) surprised investors by removing all rate hikes from their forward-looking 'dot plots'. In addition, the European Central Bank downgraded their growth expectations and extended their long-term bank funding programme. As a result, interest rates fell globally and yield curves flattened.

Emerging market high yield bonds benefited from this backdrop, with periods of US dollar weakness resulting from the dovish Fed. Over the month, US data remained robust whilst Chinese activity appeared to pick up following a bumper period of credit creation at the start of the year.

Over the month we reduced our overweight in US high yield bond and purchased single B risk in Europe where we see reduced downside risk. We continue to hold a small overweight in emerging market high yield where yields are attractive as the growth outlook improves and US rate rises remain on hold. Overall the fund remains positioned with a higher yield than the benchmark.

Martin holds an MA in Economics from Cambridge University, St Catharine's College.

KEY RISKS

- The value of an investment and any income taken from it is not guaranteed and can go down as well as up. You may not get back the amount you originally invested.
- This fund holds bonds that are traded through agents, brokers or investment banks matching buyers and sellers. This makes the bonds less easy to buy and sell than investments traded on an exchange. In exceptional circumstances the fund may not be able to sell bonds and may defer withdrawals, or suspend dealing. The Directors can only delay paying out if it is in the interests of all investors and with the permission of the fund depository.
- The fund invests directly or indirectly in bonds which are issued by companies or governments. If these companies or governments experience financial difficulty, they may be unable to pay back some or all of the interest, original investment or other payments that they owe. If this happens, the value of the fund may fall.
- The fund could lose money if any institution providing services such as acting as counterparty to derivatives or other instruments, becomes unwilling or unable to meet its obligations to the fund.
- Derivatives are highly sensitive to changes in the value of the asset on which they are based and can increase the size of losses and gains.
- The fund may have underlying investments that are valued in currencies that are different from the currency of this share class. Exchange rate fluctuations will impact the value of your investment. Currency hedging techniques may be applied to reduce this impact but may not entirely eliminate it.
- We may take some or all of the ongoing charges from the fund's capital rather than the fund's income. This increases the amount of income, but it reduces the growth potential and may lead to a fall in the value of the fund.
- Investment returns on bonds are sensitive to trends in interest rate movements. Such changes will affect the value of your investment.
