FUND MANAGER COMMENTARY

October was a very tough month for equity markets, as fears regarding the longevity of the bull market have been exacerbated by higher macro volatility. Concerns about trade wars, a sharp slowdown in China, Brexit negotiations, US midterm elections, European political woes, rising inflation and rates were on everyone's mind. Meanwhile, a subdued start to the third quarter earnings season has only added to uncertainty. As equity markets have fallen sharply, the reaction to earnings disappointment has seen stocks being punished more than usual. Not even valuations have provided much of a cushion, as short-term market conditions put our faith to the test. As the market rout intensified through the period, defensive equities and value stocks broadly outperformed mid-caps and growth names.

Turning to performance, sector allocation was the biggest drag on relative performance. This was largely driven by our overweight in industrials and technology. Stock selection in financials and consumer goods was also disappointing, though offset by healthcare and materials. At the company level, Jupiter Fund Management, Standard Chartered, Melrose and Sophos Group were the biggest negative contributors. B&M Value Retail, NMC Health and Associated British Foods performed well.

On activity, we initiated a new position in Wizz Air, which has endured a tough summer due to industry disruption and a rising oil price. Despite this, we believe the company has a strong runway for growth ahead of it. G4S and BAE Systems were both sold for the portfolio.

KEY RISKS

- The return from this fund is dependent on relatively few individual investments. This means that a fall in the value of an individual investment can have a major impact on the overall performance of the fund.
- The fund could lose money if any institution providing services such as acting as counterparty to derivatives or other instruments, becomes unwilling or unable to meet its obligations to the fund.
- Derivatives are highly sensitive to changes in the value of the asset on which they are based and can increase the size of losses and gains.
- The fund may have underlying investments that are valued in currencies that are different from sterling (British pounds). Any such investments will be impacted by exchange rate fluctuations and this may affect the value of your investment and any income from it. Currency hedging techniques may be applied to reduce the impact of exchange rate fluctuations but may not entirely eliminate it.
