FUND MANAGER COMMENTARY

Following a decline in November, the FTSE All Share rebounded strongly in December and ended the month up 4.8%. The index closed the year at an all-time high, with performance driven by mega caps and returns from the commodities sector.

Oil finished strongly after a weak start to the year, ending December as the biggest monthly outperformer. The passing of the US tax reform bill was a key event, with the focus on lifting growth and wages. By far the biggest impact is the corporate tax cut to 21%, which represents a near-term net positive for US corporate earnings and cashflows.

At a sector level, mining stocks considerably outperformed. There were also positive contributions from REITs, travel & leisure, house goods & construction, tobacco, and food retailers. Conversely, utilities was the only sector in negative territory. From a style perspective, cheap and value stocks were out of favour. From a geographical perspective, UK domestic and North America-exposed companies had a more difficult month, to the benefit of Asia and European-exposed companies.

The fund delivered a gain of 2.4% in the period, underperforming against a strong benchmark return. Sector allocation was the biggest detriment to relative performance, led by our overweight in industrials and underweight in energy. More generally, the lack of mega caps hurt returns in the period. Stock selection was more mixed, though we saw underperformance in financials. Conversely, we saw good returns in consumer goods and consumer services.

KEY RISKS

- Derivatives are highly sensitive to changes in the value of the asset on which they are based and can increase the size of losses and gains.
- The fund may have underlying investments that are valued in currencies that are different from Sterling (British Pounds). Any such investments will be impacted by exchange rate fluctuations and this may affect the value of your investment and any income from it. Currency hedging techniques may have been applied to reduce the impact of exchange rate fluctuations but may not entirely eliminate it.
- The return from this fund is dependent on relatively few individual investments. This means that a fall in the value of an individual investment can have a major impact on the overall performance of the fund.
- The fund could lose money if any institutions providing services such as safekeeping of assets or acting as counterparty to derivatives or other instruments, becomes unwilling or unable to meet its obligations to the fund.
