FUND MANAGER COMMENTARY

Asia Pacific ex Japan equities returned +4.2% in December in GBP terms whilst the fund returned +1.3%.

By country, Korea led the gains in the index. This detracted from performance given our underweight allocation to the region based on the very weak corporate governance we find there. China underperformed but, conversely, this led to positive contribution due to our underweight allocation.

In terms of sectors, Technology and Basic Materials both enjoyed a strong month, whilst Consumer Services and Telecommunications lagged. Our underweight position in Technology and overweight in Telecommunications were therefore also negative contributors.

At a stock level, Lenovo was our strongest contributor to fund performance. It has benefitted from the working from home trend and its shares have more than doubled in price from when we added it to the portfolio in the middle of 2020. Once again, not owning Alibaba also contributed positively given the shares took another leg down in December on news of potential regulatory tightening. Our worst performer was Myer Holdings whose shares sold off as the hoped for bid by Premier Investments failed to materialise.

For activity, we participated in the Embassy Office Parks REIT Institutional Placement believing it to be a quality REIT portfolio, underpinned by strong demand drivers for office space in India. We trimmed our Qantas Airways position following the recent share price improvement and to reflect increased risks of further virus cases in Australia. We also tendered some of our NTPC holdings in their buyback given the premium offered.

KEY RISKS

- The value of an investment and any income taken from it is not guaranteed and can go down as well as up; you may not get back the amount you originally invested.
- The fund could lose money if any institution providing services such as acting as counterparty to derivatives or other instruments, becomes unwilling or unable to meet its obligations to the fund.
- Derivatives are highly sensitive to changes in the value of the asset on which they are based and can increase the size of losses and gains.
- The fund may have underlying investments that are valued in currencies that are different from sterling (British pounds). Exchange rate fluctuations will impact the value of your investment. Currency hedging techniques may be applied to reduce this impact but may not entirely eliminate it.
- We may take some or all of the ongoing charges from the fund’s capital rather than the fund’s income. This increases the amount of income, but it reduces the growth potential and may lead to a fall in the value of the fund.
