FUND MANAGER COMMENTARY

The unfortunate emergence of a significant health scare from China dented the equity rally in January. Fears over the Coronavirus outbreak largely led to global equity markets underperforming. Despite the best efforts of the WHO to restore some calm, panic indicators were elevated, with forecasts of a potentially large, but temporary effect on China growth. In Europe, the economic data remains unconvincing, with the French and Italian economy faltering at a time when it looks like Germany may be over the worst. Elsewhere, ECB chief Christine Lagarde launched a comprehensive review of the ECB policy framework, while the existing stance unsurprisingly remained unchanged.

Government Bonds and Gold led asset returns, indicating a period of risk aversion. It was a tough start to the year for Resources, while China-exposed stocks were also hit hard. Financial and Consumer Services were also weaker sectors. Conversely, Utility stocks dominated the top of the leaderboard. From a size perspective, mid-caps performed strongly. In respect of factor returns, Value struggled relative to Momentum, Quality and Growth style tilts.

The L&G European Equity Income fund delivered a disappointing return of -3.6% in January. Selection in Industrials, Basic Materials and Financials was the most meaningful driver of underperformance. On allocation, the underweight positioning in Utilities had the largest negative impact on relative returns. At the company level, we saw positive contributions from Pandora, Novo Nordisk and EDP. On the flipside, notable underperformers included Daimler, ArcelorMittal, AP Moller-Maersk, ENI and SKF.

KEY RISKS

- The value of an investment and any income taken from it is not guaranteed and can go down as well as up; you may not get back the amount you originally invested.
- The return from this fund is dependent on relatively few individual investments. This means that a fall in the value of an individual investment can have a major impact on the overall performance of the fund.
- The fund could lose money if any institution providing services such as acting as counterparty to derivatives or other instruments, becomes unwilling or unable to meet its obligations to the fund.
- Derivatives are highly sensitive to changes in the value of the asset on which they are based and can increase the size of losses and gains.
- The fund may have underlying investments that are valued in currencies that are different from sterling (British pounds). Exchange rate fluctuations will impact the value of your investment. Currency hedging techniques may be applied to reduce this impact but may not entirely eliminate it.
- We may take some or all of the ongoing charges from the fund's capital rather than the fund's income. This increases the amount of income, but it reduces the growth potential and may lead to a fall in the value of the fund.
