FUND MANAGER COMMENTARY

The volatile start to the year for UK equity markets continued, with the FTSE All Share a heavy casualty, closing February down -3.3% in total returns. The overall mood of markets settled in the last week of the period, but risk assets clearly remain sensitive to shifting perceptions about the central bank policy outlook and ongoing signs of global protectionism and populism.

While it proved a tough month for equity investors, corporate earnings data and M&A activity remain broadly supportive to UK equities. Economic momentum remains largely solid, particularly GDP growth and cyclical indicators, though there are clearly pockets of the market- consumer and housing- that endure negative headlines.

At the sector level, consumer staples, telecoms, utilities and oil and gas producers were notably weak. Within the consumer discretionary sector, media and leisure industries both enjoyed a strong month. Food retailers and online names also performed well. From a style perspective, momentum was in evidence. Stocks that outperformed and enjoyed earnings upgrades in January continued to outperform in February. Cheap stocks were broadly out of favour.

During the period, we are pleased that the fund delivered strong relative outperformance of 2.4%. This was driven by a combination of stock selection and sector allocation. On the former, we continue to see strong returns in both consumer services and consumer goods. In terms of positioning, our lack of exposure to bond proxies and commodity sectors added value.

KEY RISKS

- The return from this fund is dependent on relatively few individual investments. This means that a fall in the value of an individual investment can have a major impact on the overall performance of the fund.
- The fund could lose money if any institution providing services such as acting as counterparty to derivatives or other instruments, becomes unwilling or unable to meet its obligations to the fund.
- Derivatives are highly sensitive to changes in the value of the asset on which they are based and can increase the size of losses and gains.
- The fund may have underlying investments that are valued in currencies that are different from sterling (British pounds). Any such investments will be impacted by exchange rate fluctuations and this may affect the value of your investment and any income from it. Currency hedging techniques may be applied to reduce the impact of exchange rate fluctuations but may not entirely eliminate it.
