All performance periods over a year will be annualised. Performance for the Z USD Acc share class in USD, launched on 29 November 2013. Source: Lipper. Performance assumes all fund charges have been taken and that all income generated by the investments, after deduction of tax, remains in the fund. This fund has adopted a single swinging price, this means that on any given day the single dealing price will be set at either bid, offer or somewhere in between, based on whether there was a net inflow or outflow into or out of the Fund. The past performance depicted in this factsheet is based on that dealing price and therefore may appear more volatile than it would otherwise be if we were to show the notional bid or offer performance, this is as a result of the daily swing.

Past performance is not a guide to future returns. The value of your investment and any income taken from it is not guaranteed and may go up and down.

The eligibility for the Z share class is restricted and may require a separate fee agreement with LGIM. Please contact us to discuss share class eligibility.

FUND MANAGER COMMENTARY

Italy was the centre of market attention for much of the month with a significant sell-off after the proposed government was vetoed by the Italian President, opening up the prospect of elections that could be a proxy referendum on Italy's relationship with the EU. Italian government, corporate and bank credit spreads all widened significantly, with a focus on bank risk. Meanwhile, German and UK government bond yields declined significantly.

The fund underperformed the benchmark in May, with holdings in investment grade bonds generating negative returns. However, our short CDS position in investment grade credit protected the portfolio partially. Elsewhere, we closed our short bund, long US treasury duration position on the back of Italian political risk. We also closed our short position in Italian government bonds. Meanwhile, our equity tail risk hedges on European banks and emerging markets protected the portfolio well. We are currently running a more defensive credit portfolio compared to April. Within credit, we prefer investment grade credit over high yield and commodity names. The fund currently has an overall short duration bias and within the FX space we have reduced our overall long bias to US dollars.

Looking ahead, we think that global liquidity tightening means that the market reaction to negative fundamental developments will continue to be aggressive. Specific Italian risk might reduce if the new government applies more market-friendly policies, but there is still pressure elsewhere, notably across a number of emerging markets, as US dollar strength bites.

KEY RISKS

- This fund holds bonds that, rather than being traded on an exchange, are traded through agents, brokers or investment banks matching buyers and sellers. This makes the bonds less easy to buy and sell than investments that are traded on an exchange and on any particular day there may not be a buyer or a seller for the bonds. In times of market uncertainty or if an exceptional amount of withdrawals are requested it may become less easy for your fund to sell investments and the Manager may defer withdrawals, or suspend dealing. The Manager can only delay paying out if it is in the interests of all investors and with the permission of the fund trustee or depository.
- The fund invests directly or indirectly in bonds which are issued by companies or governments. If these companies or governments experience financial difficulty, they may be unable to pay back some or all of the interest, original investment or other payments that they owe. If this happens, the value of your fund may fall.
- The fund could lose money if any institution providing services such as acting as counterparty to derivatives or other instruments, becomes unwilling or unable to meet its obligations to the fund.
- Derivatives are highly sensitive to changes in the value of the asset on which they are based and can increase the size of losses and gains. The impact to the fund can be greater where derivatives are used in an extensive or complex way.
- The fund may have underlying investments that are valued in currencies that are different from the currency of this share class. Any such investments will be impacted by exchange rate fluctuations and this may affect the value of your investment and any income from it. Currency hedging techniques may be applied to reduce the impact of exchange rate fluctuations but may not entirely eliminate it.
- We may take some or all of the ongoing charges from the fund's capital rather than the fund's income. This increases the amount of income, but it reduces the growth potential and may lead to a fall in the value of the fund.
- Investment returns on bonds are sensitive to trends in interest rate movements. Their values are likely to fall when interest rates rise. Such falls may be more pronounced in a low interest rate environment. Bonds with a short time to go before their maturity date will fall by less than bonds with a longer time to their maturity date.
