FUND MANAGER COMMENTARY

Continued positive market sentiment and broadening equity market participation drove a strong return for the European equity market in April. The pace of vaccination has accelerated significantly following Europe's sluggish start to the vaccine campaign that was causing investor concern. Prospects for vaccine supply have improved, and by the end of April, the daily rate of vaccinations in major euro area member states had reached between 0.6% and 0.8% of the total population. Optimism amongst investors was further fuelled by the Eurozone's manufacturing PMI hitting a new all-time high. The services sector also returned to growth in the month. Beneath the headline index, the recent factor rotation trade from growth to value paused this month with growth outperforming. This was in contrast to February and March where inflation concerns and the reopening trade drove a strong value stock rally.

The L&G European Equity Income fund underperformed its benchmark in April. Stock selection accounted was positive, driven by names in Technology and Health Care. Sector allocation was negative due to our overweight positions in Telecoms and Energy, with both these sectors lagging the broader index. At the stock level, the top positive contributions came from Andritz, Getinge and SAP. Negative contributions came from Siemens Energy and not owning LVMH and ASML.

There were no notable portfolio changes in the period.

KEY RISKS

- The value of an investment and any income taken from it is not guaranteed and can go down as well as up; you may not get back the amount you originally invested.
- The return from this fund is dependent on relatively few individual investments. This means that a fall in the value of an individual investment can have a major impact on the overall performance of the fund.
- The fund could lose money if any institution providing services such as acting as counterparty to derivatives or other instruments, becomes unwilling or unable to meet its obligations to the fund.
- Derivatives are highly sensitive to changes in the value of the asset on which they are based and can increase the size of losses and gains.
- The fund may have underlying investments that are valued in currencies that are different from sterling (British pounds). Exchange rate fluctuations will impact the value of your investment. Currency hedging techniques may be applied to reduce this impact but may not entirely eliminate it.
- We may take some or all of the ongoing charges from the fund's capital rather than the fund's income. This increases the amount of income, but it reduces the growth potential and may lead to a fall in the value of the fund.
