FUND MANAGER COMMENTARY

Despite seeing a return of global growth worries and a sharp move on bond markets, equities have broadly brushed aside these concerns. UK equities have been impressively resilient in Q1, given volatility in currency moves and a lack of enthusiasm from global asset allocators.

In the UK, while business sentiment and activity indicators are subdued, the labour market and consumer confidence readings appear as bright spots. PMI data for the region was better, but impacted by a stockpiling effect ahead of the Brexit deal.

Arguably, any investor conservatism is reflected in the mixed signals we have seen on size, style and sector returns. Large-caps were the size winners, while value underperformed. The strength of the FTSE 100 was spurred on by strong gains in consumer staples, resources and telecoms. Notably, UK miners made both short and long term relative highs. On the flipside, financials, utilities and leisure stocks were out of favour.

On performance, the L&G UK Equity Income fund returned 2.5%, which represented a second consecutive month of performance that was broadly in line with the index return. Sector allocation was a headwind, predominantly driven by our underweight positioning in the large-cap consumer staples sector. Elsewhere, our overweight in financials also detracted value, given the negative returns from banks. On a more positive note, stock selection added value following good returns in our industrials and resources.

KEY RISKS

- The value of an investment and any income taken from it is not guaranteed and can go down as well as up. You may not get back the amount you originally invested.
- The fund could lose money if any institution providing services such as acting as counterparty to derivatives or other instruments, becomes unwilling or unable to meet its obligations to the fund.
- Derivatives are highly sensitive to changes in the value of the asset on which they are based and can increase the size of losses and gains. The impact to the fund can be greater where derivatives are used in an extensive or complex way.
- The fund may have underlying investments that are valued in currencies that are different from sterling (British pounds). Exchange rate fluctuations will impact the value of your investment. Currency hedging techniques may be applied to reduce this impact but may not entirely eliminate it.
- We may take some or all of the ongoing charges from the fund's capital rather than the fund's income. This increases the amount of income, but it reduces the growth potential and may lead to a fall in the value of the fund.
